YELLOW JACKETS AT GULF SUMMIT

They Dismiss Rev. Abner Moon's Congregation in a Hurry.

THE FROZEN WELL OF KIRKWOOD

Notes Appropriate to the Season of Family Reunions .- The Susquehanna Shops Are Rushed with Work. More Gold Discovered Over in Wayne County.

Special Correspondence to The Tribune. Susquehanna, Aug. 17.-Yellow jackcts made things hum at a Sunday ser vice and wedding in the little red school house, seven miles from here, last week.. Once a month the Rev.Abner Moon, an aged clergyman, drives over to Gulf Summit, to preach to the farmers and lumbermen. The congre gation was larger than usual on Sunday, it having been noised abroad that a popular young couple of the vicinity were to be married at the close of the service. Elder Moon always makes his come with the family of Farmer Crozer, at the Summit, and before going to the school house to begin the service Mrs. Crozier, with a womanly regard for the eternal fitness of things, suggested that, inasmuch as there was to be a marriage ceremony, the good man ought to exchange his soft hat for a The elder thought so, too, but said he had none with him. Mrs. Crozler left the room, but soon triumphantly returned, bearing an ancient beaver belonging to her husband. It was a veteran of several campaigns, and had been in the garret for a year or so. It fitted the elder nicely, and he started for the school house. There he found the prospective bride and bridegroom, eccupying front seats, and an expectant congregation filling the little build-Somehow, the service passed off listlessly. The graphic story of Jonah and the whale fell upon unheeding The appetite of the congregation was whetted to witness the wedding. The sermon was finished, the choir had sang a hymn, and the elder had just asked for a liberal collection in aid of the suffering Armenians. Farmer Bloodgood usually took up the collection, and, reaching over the preacher's desk,he grasped the elder's borrowed In a second, or less, there emerged from the hat scores of active aggressive yellow jacket bees. Several of them attacked the elder's baid head, and, with a cry of pain, he leaped out of the window and sought a nearby brook. Farmer Bloodgood cried to the congregation to be seated and be dismissed in order, but the bees were raising lumps on saint and sinner, and in three minutes the little school house was deserted, except by the bees. Farmer Bloodgood found the elder in a ravine, applying damp clay to his swollen scalp. Then they made a close inspection of the tile, and discovered a snug little bee's nest, made in the darksome recesses of the garret. Strangely enough, the bees suffered themselves to be carried to church without protest,. They were in the top of the hat, which was not disturbed by the elder when he put on and took off the beaver. But when the coin began to a vigorous resistance. By night the General Yardmaster Jordan says that since the big rush of freight on the Erie commenced, he doesn't have time even to change his mind.

The Susquehanna shops are rushed with work, turning out new, rebuilt and repaired locomotives, to handle the rush of freight.

A COLD WELL. Between Great Bend and Kirkwood there is a well locally known as "the well of frozen air." In digging the well for water a strata of frozen clay was encountered at a depth of 55 feet. After passing through five feet of this, numerous cavities were encountered through which the cold air came in gusts. The escape of the air from the well could be heard roaring for two hundred yards. The air which comes from the subterranean depths is so frigid that it is not possible for one to hold his hand over the opening for more than two minutes without having it frozen. A bucket of water set over the opening will freeze through within a few hours. The work on the well was abandoned as soon as the cavities of frozen air were tapped.

by Captain Raleigh of the United States army. Last week a strong and muscular man, with his cheek bones and copper countenance, was seen on the streets of Frankfort. But few realized that was an Indian, though he was the full-blooded Cherokee, Charley Parker, a nephew of the celebrated chief. Quannah Parker. He was mounted on a beautiful bay thoroughbred. He was the forerunner of the invasion of the 1,200 Cherokee warriors, and was here to see the governor. They will enter Kentucky at Shawneetown and march to a place about three miles from Russellville, where they will find the grave of a great chief of the Cherokees who was killed in battle with the Shawnees in 1749. There they will do his memory honor. This battle took place or a prairie near Pond River, and the old chief was wounded and carried back into what is now Logan county, where he died and was buried.

THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, Aug. 17 .- On the Stock ex hange today prices were nover more than a fraction above those of last night's close during the day except in a few cases and most of the day's sales were made at a level quite sharply below last night's close. Average net decline in the promi-nent railroad stocks was over a point and in individual cases considerably more. The Grangers, the Coalers, the inernational stocks, and in fact, all western railroad stocks were notable sufferers. Northern Pacific, preferred, being a drag on the market all day. Notable declines were also shown in Sugar and Tobacco. Lake Shore jumped 2 per cent. in the early dealings to 17832, which is a new high price record, but the gain was most-ly lost in the final transactions. Burington shows a net decline of 1%, the heavioest loss in the Grangers. The total sales of stocks today were 435,100 shares.
